DEFINITION

Management Consultancy

- It refers to the work done by a consulting firm which focuses on advising companies on the best ways to manage and operate their business. The firm will give advice on concepts like their business strategy and operational techniques, and also skills like time management, depending upon the needs of the company. (http://www.businessdictionary.com/definition/management-consulting.html).

- It is a profession whose members provide extremely useful services to business managers. It specializes in information systems, automated offices, financial analysis and modeling budgeting and cost controls, organization structures, personnel compensation, strategic planning and a host of other areas. It can also be described as an independent and objective advisory service provided by qualified persons to clients in order to help them identify and analyze management problems or opportunities. Management consultants also recommend solutions or suggested actions with respect to these issues and help, when requested, in their implementation. (Cabrera, Ma. Elenita Balatbat. (2000). Association of Management Consulting Firms

It is a site of AMCF which is the premier international association of firms engaged in the practice of consulting to management. Founded in 1929 as ACME (Association of Management Consulting Engineers), AMCF today remains in the forefront of promoting excellence and integrity in the profession. The mission of AMCF is to be the collective voice and promote knowledge exchange and professional standards for the community of management consulting firms from around the world. It does this by helping members strengthen their senior management teams through value-driven programs, research and communications. The association also promotes a better understanding of the professions among the business community, government, academia and the public.

Institute of Consulting

The Institute of Consulting has progressively been developing its position and strategy as the professional body for the consultancy profession. Its history and background is an amalgam and extension of several predecessor bodies, the Institute of Management Consultants (IMC) and the Institute of Business Advisors (IBA)

Management Consultancies Association (MCA)

The Management Consultancies Association (MCA) is the representative body for management consultancy firms in the UK. Our sixty member companies comprise around 70% of the UK consulting industry, estimated to be worth £9bn in 2008, employ more than 40,000 consultants and work with over 90 of the top FTSE 100 companies and almost all parts of the public sector.
