Financial Accounting

DEFINITIONS

Financial accounting

- Organizing and presenting of an organization's accounts for the internal information of management but particularly for reporting to shareholders. The two basic tools of financial accounting are the balance sheet, showing the company's financial position at a particular point in time, and the profit and loss account, showing the company's performance over the financial year. Another tool of financial accounting can be a funds statement detailing company investment and the source of funds for a particular period. (Singh, S. K. (1997) Dictionary of management. New Delhi: Commonwealth Publishers. Ref 658.003 D554, Reference-Information Section, University Library)
- Is the field of accountancy concerned with the preparation of financial statements for decision makers, such as stockholders, suppliers, banks, government agencies, owners, and other stakeholders. The fundamental need for financial accounting is to reduce principal-agent problem by measuring and monitoring agents' performance and reporting the results to interested users (Wikipedia: the free Encyclopedia )
